

Money: From Concern to Freedom

Gain freedom and power in the area of money

Most of the time we relate to money as something separate from ourselves – a “thing” to be managed, lost, spent, or saved – but rarely as a conversation that we invented to lend power to our own interactions. By ignoring our authorship of that conversation, we give “money” a particular power to determine our identity, our future, and the possibilities we share.

In this seminar you will examine your relationship to money – and develop and refine those distinctions that lend a facility, confidence, and ease to the practical business of daily living.
